The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The shocking and alarming social conditions revealed by the testimony in the Thaw trial and by the statistics of divorces recently given out by the United States Census Bureau, over one million having been granted in the past nineteen years, furnish the text for the following sermon written by the Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, pastor of the Irving Square Presbyterian Church:

Ex. 20:14, "Thou shalt not commit adultery."

It is my intention to broaden the scope of the word which is the object of this sentence, and to cause it to cover, as I am certain God means it, to-day, to cover, all that field of human uncleanness which striket at the very core of our common life. The command hits hard and swift against the social crime of marital infidelity; but also in the light of the messages of Christ, it condemns, with no uncertain sound, all those men and women in whose hearts and actions lust receives free rein.

The Gospel of our Lord insists on cleanness of mind and mind; it censures unsparingly and scathingly the violation by any and all men, married or single, of God's law of purity.

The fourth word, with our Lord behind it, forbids three sins, and the three are one: first, the nullification of the marriage bond; second, dealing with all its attendant evils. Secondly, the pollution of the purity of personal and public life by men and women who are without restraint or law ful tie. Thirdly, the degradation and destruction of the spiritual and physical elements in man through unbridled lust in the heart.

And now let us to the points. The covenant by and between two human beings—one man and one woman—to live together in the holy estate of matrimony, is the most sacred contract man may make. Resting as it should always rest upon it not unholy and the child of lust—upon a growing and a gracious love one for the other—it is the grandest of fellowships. Expressing, as it does, its sanctity, and preservation, as the pledges of two people to life-long faith, done and given in the presence of Almighty God, the glory of our Father and the happiness of two souls depend. As a civil contract it is in the basis of our political and our social life. Upon the inviolability of the marriage contract the health of the state, the integrity of the home, entirely depend. Marriage may, before God, and should, throughout this land and our world, be invalidated only upon full and sufficient proof of infidelity by either party. Where decare is guilt should be denied further rights to marry. The granting of absolute divorces with permission to any marry, for any cause other than proved unfaithfulness, is unwise, unsafe, unjustifiable and un-Christian. Legal separation and legalized immorality are two very different things. The people of such uncongenial dispositions, as preclude a happy communal life, had much better pursue independent careers. But the dignity, the importance, the sanctity of the wedding vow demand that it must not be permitted to be used as a cloak for licentiousness. The disgrace of divorce is a menace to the perpetuity of our institutions. In no case will which absolute release may be procured does aught credit to our brains, or to our righteousness as a nation. The sin and the shame that are bound up in our system of licensed polygamy will tend to our own undoing. do we not watch out. The wrong of Mormonism is a great one; but it is contemporaneous cohabitation be a bad thing—and it is—what must be our judgment upon that monstrous life polygamy which pleads personal convenience rather than mutual satisfaction as its best excuse? If an elder of the Mormon church is to be kept from the halls of Congress because the civil law forbids polygamy, what should be our attitude toward that other leader in our national affairs whose whole life contravenes God's moral law? Yes, my friends, Mormon polygamy is vicious in principle and fact, but not more so than that system of legalized vice that by laws of our country now permit. The sacredness of the marriage covenant must be protected. That marriage should be the crowning of clean love, and that it binds till death, must be overemphasized. The seal of pure affection is of as much account to those who will go through life together and to society at large, as the law in relation of the state. Fundamentally love should be the motive of a holy union of two souls. Of this the state also takes no notice. The burden of vital statistics has more interest, as a law enforcing body, in the question of how old is the woman than in the motives that lead the man to wed her. But God looks at the matter with a different eye; and in His sight no marriage is of good report that is not based on the union of two souls in holy love. The courts may declare the other marriage legal, but the hand of Jehovah will stamp it as unclean. "Thou shalt not commit adultery" rings the Messianic message and the law puts God to shame. Here and there, everywhere in America, we may see the sorrow of ill wedlock. Children in the midst of wrecked unhappy homes, born and reared to a heritage of embarrassment to say the least, and into immoral family conditions to say the most. Unretrained divorce is wicked and it should be prohibited. We must not put license at a premium, nor make vice easy.

No less guilty in the eyes of God is the man who yields his life to sin. There is need to-day for a clear, strong note from the church calling men to purity in living. No man may be made to see, to know and to feel that chastness is an essential for men as for women. Away with that godless theory that what is fundamentally wrong in morals for women may be conveniently right for men. God has no two systems of morality—the one for the men, the other for the women. In His sight there is neither male nor female, for the law is equally unto both. The degradation of man by man himself is unfair to God and unfairly without honor. And the sad thing of all is that men will do without thought or care the evil that they do.

But Jesus has shown us clearly that in the Christian economy that man is guilty of our stated sin who harbors lust within his heart. And although in the last analysis the man who commits overt sin is guilty of sinning to a greater degree than the man who but pollutes his mind with evil desires and unholy thoughts, yet both are directly disobedient to the will of God and the way of each is the highroad into death. And it am not sure but that more of us are guilty of the latter infringement of the law than of the former. Many a man and many a woman who would not dare to go the full length of open evil, will do themselves real damage and endanger the safety of their immortal souls through the harborins of ungodly, sensual thoughts. And of two things I am very positive of which the first is this: that it is hardest to keep the mind clean than to refrain from outward evil; and the second is this, that pure thoughts will induce and produce uprightness of act. If as James said, it is easier to control a horse than the tongue, I am sure that it is easier to control the tongue than the mind. And the truth of God is this, that steadfast endeavor for purity of heart and mind will meet with sure success and will assure nobility of action.

We need a sanctified purity of life. I am disgusted and would be disheartened, did I not trust in God, over the amount of unblushing criminality I see and hear in my personal experiences. Men who are sure they immorality is fair for men but woefully wrong for the wives of men. Women who boast that the men they know have seen the seamy side of life and who have been better for it. Mere girls who think that the only way to reap wheat is to sow wild oats all these—men and women in the seeding and harvesting of sin. Motives and fatherhood are lost to shame that they desire their sons to indulge themselves in little of all sorts of evil that they may be men of real experience. Such counsel is sin, and oh! the folly of it all. Forbidden fruit is not the food on which heart is through the lesth of sin—the heart of God. And many a life is by Christ is through the depths of hell.

It is not so. I know ignorance is not necessarily virtue. And consequently I am heartily in favor of the proper and godly instruction of our youth in the secrets of the mighty and central truths and principles of human life. But the true way to wisdom is not through vicious and low knowledge and experience with sin, but rather at our mother's knees. The right way to knowledge is through the true and noble teachings of men and women whose experience is untouched with sin. No man is a better man because he has drunk the cup of sin to the dregs. The only experience that is certainly worth while is the experience that is good, upright, inspiring. Resistance to temptation is of much value to give power; but a fall into sin does no man the highest good.

We want to insist that morals are a most of importance in this world. No unclean man can clasp the hand and the loyalty of a pure woman. None but the clean deserve the fair. The man of unchaste life deserves ostracism as much if not more than the woman who has sinned. Those flagrant polygamists who flaunt their sin before our faces under the guise of legal marriage deserve our scorn no less than does the profligate who openly violates law. Men of unclean life has no right to the hands of the true womanhood of this country, and for my part were it a woman I would rather live and die unmarried any man of my brow than to risk my earthly happiness into the hands of any man of dishonor. Be sure that what his wealth, position or ability might be. The womanhood of this country should preserve the virtue of the land and should put a stamp upon nobility of character and sanctity of life.

The need to-day is not so much for schools as for the awakening of the intellect and for instruction in the truth of God. Our greatest need is rather for colleges where the art of pure living and the practice of virtue may be learned. The world wants not more brains first, but more character. The greatest thing is clean living and high thinking must be taught and preached as paramount and fundamental—for they are the true source and the resurrection of all life. The integrity of the marriage institution must be maintained. The demand for a moral manhood as essential to any and all successes must be enforced. Men must be made to understand that purity is the standard of true worth, and that clean manhood is real might.

We must educate our youth to the value of goodness. We must teach them that character is worth more of account than any material acquirement or possession. We must be sure that manliness is not recklessness, and rectitude is not priggishness or fool piety. And tell them why!

How to Lose Ground.

God hath a thousand keys to open a thousand doors for the deliverance of His own when it has come to the greatest extremity, but as he faithful and care for our own part, we think is to do and suffer for Him, and lay it down at part on Himself, and leave it there; duties are ours, events are the Lord's.

When our faith goeth to meddle with events, and to run our court (if I may so speak) upon God's provinces, God beginneth to say: "How wilt Thou do this or that?" we lose ground. We have nothing to do there; it is our part to let the Almighty exercise His own office and steer His own helm.—Rutherford.

Your Opportunity.

God has made you after His own plan, and He places you just where He wishes you to be. Your Father in Heaven knows what the highest results for yourself. He has given you every opportunity. Make yourself what you will—remember it lies with you. God can make no mistakes!—Alice Freeman Palmer.

An Aztec Gynx Quarry.

A geologist at Cuernavaca, Mexico, has rediscovered an ancient Aztec onyx quarry on the slope of a hill near that place. It shows evidence of having been worked for thousands of years, although other centuries have passed since it was abandoned. The deposit of onyx was not exhausted by the original quarrymen, and the stone is said to be very beautiful, a white, yellowish or violet core being surrounded by concentric layers of a brilliant red or brown color. When sawed in slabs the stone exhibits very striking designs of varied hues.

Danger of Milk Bottles.

Beware of milk delivered in glass bottles. This is the warning of Mr. W. Lucas, a well-known West End analytical chemist. Mr. Lucas says that the growing custom of delivering milk in bottles constitutes a new and serious danger to the public, as the bottles are not easily sterilized.—Westminster Gazette.

Nothing, besides Christ and the Bible, is better worth thanking God for than a good man. Let us praise God for more than things.

The seven elements in the spectrum of a noble man: work and faith, labor and love, patience and hope, and communion with Christ.

God's elect should be men's elect; whom God chooses let us choose also.

The way to be a man worth imitating is to be an imitative man, following the highest examples.

Human Examples.

Gladstone's determination. Having planned one day to take a long walk, he took it, though it rained hard, rather than break through his habit of accomplishing whatever he had undertaken.

George Muller's faith. He depended entirely, for more than half a century, upon answers to prayer for his own support and the support of hundreds of orphans.

Washington's punctuality. Having arranged to visit Salem, and to start from Boston at eight, he started alone at that hour, the military company which was to escort him soon passing the street at the time. He was far on the way before the mortified troops overtook him.

Henry Clay's patriotism. He proposed a plan which, as his friends told him, would ruin his chances for the presidency. But he answered, saying, "I would rather be right than be president."

Spurgeon's faithfulness. A boy was attending him to a strange church where he supposed whether the lad loved Christ. "For years," said the boy, "I have showed ministers the way to the chapel, but you are the first to ask me that." The result was a soul won to the Saviour.

Luther's courage. The cardinal's friends once asked the reformer where he would find a shelter if the elector of Saxony should desert him. "Under the shield of heaven!" was the unflinching reply.

EPWORTH LEAGUE LESSONS

SUNDAY, MARCH 24.

The Resurrection.—I Cor. 15. 35-58.

Passages for reference: 1 Thess. 4. 13-18; Rev. 20. 11 to 21. 8.

Perhaps there is no one theme more often referred to in the Acts and the epistles than the resurrection. It was the subject of testimony on the part of the early church. It was the keynote of the apostles' arguments. It was that which brought forth the most caution upon them. It was the comfort of the believers in the resurrection of the dead. The resurrection is the third step in the complete redemption of man. The first is the conversion of the soul, which must still live in a body of sin. The second step is the separation of the saved soul from the sinful body—that we call death; the third step is the reuniting of the soul with the resurrected, immortal body which completes the work.

Jesus well knew the necessity for the perfect resurrection. Therefore he made many appearances to them, convincing even his enemies. Nothing was lost to the whelming evidence of his hands and his feet, his voice, his act of food with them at the lakeside and fully established the resurrection. We are not in all the proofs that he gave, but for forty days he so lived in their company that they could not doubt, and could ever drive the truth from their minds.

Jesus in his resurrection does not rise in exactly the same condition as those like Elijah, in his translation, but he was "the first fruits of them that slept." He was the first to rise from forth, but his coming is the surety of the resurrection of the saved. Here is the basis for the preaching of the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead. This angered the Sadducees, who did not believe in any resurrection, because of their materialistic, unscriptutions arose. "Because of the resurrection," they began to say. "How wilt Thou do this or that?" we lose ground. We have nothing to do there; it is our part to let the Almighty exercise His own office and steer His own helm.—Rutherford.

It is not necessary for us to go to California to get testimonials. We have them from people you know, and want you to read every one given below.

TESTIMONIALS.

My wife suffered for twenty years with failing of an ulcerated womb, and was bed-ridden for five years; was treated by different physicians with only temporary benefit. Twelve months' use of P.-B. Concentrated Iron and Alum Water made a perfect cure. She gained thirty pounds in flesh. I regard it as the most valuable remedy known for female and other troubles.

Gus. J. Burford,
Naiola, Va.

About 22 years ago I contracted blood poison, and it clung to me through all those years, until I used P.-B. Concentrated Iron and Alum Water. I am now in perfect health, and have gained 25 pounds in weight. I also suffered from Bleeding Piles, and obtained no permanent relief until I used this remedy. I must be permanently cured now, as I have had no need to use the water for the past two years.

Robert Nunnally,
Amherst, Va.

I have lived in the neighborhood of the P.-B. Iron and Alum Springs for a number of years, and can testify to the merits of the water as a tonic, and a sure cure for Scrofula and other Blood Troubles I have been benefited by using remedies for female troubles, and my father used it for throat trouble with great benefit.

Mrs. Sallie J. Nance,
East Radford, Va.

I am glad to inform you that the Concentrated Water put up by your Company has been of great value to my daughter. She was in a very weak and nervous condition before using the water, and two bottles made her almost a new woman. I am satisfied that it is a valuable remedy and should be met with a large sale.

Joel H. Cutchin, Mayor,
Roanoke, Va.

I suffered from Indigestion to such an extent that it was for weeks that I could not eat anything but the lightest of diet; could not even eat bread. Dr. Coke prescribed your Concentrated Iron and Alum Water, which I have used for several months, and the results are that I can eat almost anything, and my Indigestion is cured.

Mrs. J. F. Hinton,
621 Oxford St., Danville, Va.

My son, who was suffering with Indigestion to such an extent he had no appetite, and his was muddy, used one 15-oz. bo of your Concentrated Wate gives me pleasure to state that has had the effect to clear up his s give him a good appetite and his indigestion. I consider it a valuable water.

Harry Wooding, Mayor,
Dagville, Va.

After taking your Concentrated Iron and Alum Water myself, using it in my family with fine suits, I do not hesitate to recommend it as one of the best medicines to be found. We use it as a tonic, for Dyspepsia and Bilious Trouble, and regard it as invaluable

J. J. Lawson,
Cash'r Bank of South Boston,
South Boton, Va.

I have recently used your Concentrated Water in several cases with very satisfactory results. My wife is taking it at present for a form of Indigestion, and is pleased to say it is helping her. She says that she can be indeed. She says that she can feel the wonderful effect upon the stomach in a short while after taking a dose.

J. M. Shackleford, M. D.,
Martinsville, Va.

After using an 18-oz. bottle of P.-B. Concentrated Iron and Alum Water, I feel that I can speak too highly in praise of it. I suffered for many years with Indigestion, and for the last two years was confined to my bed most of the time. I had tried many remedies, but without relief until I used this remedy. I must be permanently cured now, as I have had no need to use the water for the past two years.

Robert Nunnally,
Amherst, Va.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife is a terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after all the surgeons under oath, in daily driving in favor. The success of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open and unquestioned. Pierce being designed upon the search light of investigation, and must be weighed in the balance that the better the composition the better the cure. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most wonderful of all the great curative agents to-day. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native roots and herbs, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used in extracting and preserving the active principles contained in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing injury to the delicate membranes of either alimentary canal, liver, kidneys, stomach or bowels, for impure blood, rheumatism and chronic ailments.

MISS ROSE MOORE

made from native roots and herbs, has escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N.Y. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in perfect health. I cannot praise it too highly."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before submitting to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

Stood the Test.

Allcock's Plasters have successfully stood the test of sixty years' use by the public, their virtues have never been equaled by any numerous imitators who have sought to trade upon the reputation of Allcock's by making plasters with hasty and claiming them to be "just as good as Allcock's."

Allcock's Plasters stand to-day indorsed by the highest medical authorities in the land, by millions of grateful patients who have proved their efficacy as a sound and reliable remedy.

THREE BOYS HAD ECZEMA.

Cured Them at Dispensary—Did Not Improve—Suffered 5 Months —Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"My three children had eczema five months. A little sore would appear on the skin and seemed very itchy, increasing in size. The sores had but little rest, but what when the second boy took the disease and a few sores developed, then the third. I took them to the Dispensary and they got no better. Then Dr. McCutcheon said Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment would cure them. We bought them and when their heads were well the sores were healing of the sores. COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only such medicines as contain no poisons. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper, are the most popular and of its correctness under oath, in daily driving in favor. The success of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open and unquestioned. Direct Needle Threader.

A machine which threads a thousand needles a minute is at work in a factory in Paris. The purpose of the machine is to thred needles that are placed afterward in the hands of lace-making lace. The device is almost entirely automatic. It takes the needles, one at a time, places in the slot, cuts the thread off a spool, threads the needle and then carries it needle across an open space and drops it into a box. The work of threading these needles was formerly done by hand.

FADED TO A SHADOW.

Worn Down by Five Years of Suffering from Kidney Complaint.

Mrs. Remethe Myers, of 180 South Tenth St., Ironton, O., says: "I have worked hard in my time and am often exposed again and again to changes of everything under the sun, so no wonder my kidneys gave out and I went all to pieces at last.

For five years I was fading away, and finally was abed for six months I could not get out of the house. I was nervous, restless and sleepless at night and lame and sore in the morning. Sometimes everything would swim and blur before me. I bloated so badly I could not wear tight clothing, and had to put on shoes two sizes larger than usual. The urine was disordered and passages were dreadfully frequent. I got help from the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills, however, and by the time I had taken four boxes the pain and bloating was gone. I have been in good health ever since."

Weekly Review of Trade and Latest Market Reports.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

"Depression in the stock market did not extend beyond Wall Street, commodity prices ruling high and general business continuing vigorous. The traffic conditions have improved somewhat, increasing the distribution of merchandise, and spring sale of dry goods have equalled anticipations. Retail trade is good for the season and late buying of winter goods, necessitated by the severe weather in many sections, has depleted stocks in a most satisfactory manner.

"A few trade reports tell of conservatism regarding operations for the future, due to high prices and tight money, and there is practical unanimity as to the activity of current trade, in comparison with last year's figures, being almost always decidedly favorable. Several wage scales are under discussion that may not be settled without further exhausting the cost of money production or operation, but no serious strike is anticipated, and higher freight rates have become necessary on some railroads because of increased expense for and the building, causing $10,000 damage.

Sings Songs And Women Weep.

The inhabitants of Wales are given to persons variously; some fight, some pray, some sing. Thomas weep. Samuel Warwick, under ether, broke into song so sweet that the two surgeons who were cutting off his thumb were stirred and four women in the next room were moved to tears. Warwick crushed the fingers of his right hand. He was taken to the office of Dr. M. O'F. Dolphin, who found he had to amputate two fingers, and called Dr. Mareus F. Squier to help him. When they got Warwick under ether he sang "Mother, Mee In My Dreams" In a full baritone voice and with much feeling. Dr. Dolphin, who was using the knife, and Dr. Squier, who had the other cone, trembled with emotion, but, recovering themselves, cut off one finger. Then Warwick sang "Some One Is Waiting for Me," and next "Will You Miss Me When I'm Gone?" Dr. Dolphin heard sounds of wailing, and opening the door of his waiting-room, found four women weeping. When Warwick came to from the ether he lost his voice, except to utter several expletives.

WORTH REMEMBERING

According to the Bureau of Statistics the total value of the exports of American manufactures during the calendar year 1906 was $719,000,000, as compared with $571,410,497 for 1905.

The production of wool in the German Empire is decreasing annually. In 1861, the number of sheep, in round numbers, was 28,000,000, while in 1900, the last year for which statistics are available, it had fallen to 9,692,500.

Those who are not acquainted with the appointments of a Korean bedroom will be surprised to learn that the other day in the town of Anak one gambler who was down on his luck, threw a pillow at the head of the winner and fractured his skull.

The production of beet sugar in the German Empire in 1906 is estimated by the International Sugar Statistical Association to be 2,167,- 200 metric tons (2,204.6 pounds each), against 2,394,445 metric tons in 1905, a loss of nearly 10 per cent. Austria-Hungary's beet sugar crop is 11 per cent. short.

Hot Matzoth.

Israel Greenberg stopped to talk a few minutes in the five-story bakeshop at 251-253 East Third-st. Third Street. Israel had balanced on his head six feet of pasteboard boxes laden with matzoth, the unleavened bread used in the observance of the Passover, and the boxes rested against a gas flame as the baker talked. Soon bakers came rushing up all about him crying "Fire! Fire!" Israel, looking above, saw that his orthodox burden was a pillar of flame. He ran out from under and into the street, shouting "Fire!" with the other bakers. In thirty seconds the five stories of bake shop were emptied of bakers, and tons of matzoth, which is the only kind of bread the Jew bakers are making just now, began to blaze. Captain Morrison and the crew of Engine 16 bored their way through the smoke to the second floor. The Captain gave the order to fall back, and he himself fell back, to the floor then of a hundred barrels. A dozen empty barrels fell on top of him, and no cries for help were lost in the clatter. When his crew got to the street they missed him and ran back. When they resumed him from the floor him he was not hurt, but he looked like a ghost. The fire destroyed the interior of the building, causing $10,000

Each Woman Had A Dog.

When the engine and hook-and-ladder were planning their way through the first-story apartment house at 157 West 49th-st. they found a fire was shooting up through the air-shaft and filling the place with smoke, and several women were in the hallway carrying dogs in their arms stood at the windows and yelled for help to be saved. The firemen said they never saw so many dogs at one time, for it appeared that every woman in the street was out that way and had brought her dog upon saving. A few of the women refused to be rescued unless their dogs were taken down the ladders with them. After everybody had been rescued the house from cellar to roof was crowded with pajama-clad women almost every one of whom had a dog.

Danced At Gun's Muzzle.

Charles Gaffney, a laborer on a dock, was followed out of a saloon of George Sauer, at One Hundred and Seventh Street and Third Avenue, by about 16 men, who were carrying on a noisy mock wedding parade. Cheller resented their curiosity, and drew a revolver and ordered them to dance. They danced. Then they sang, and at a time and all together. A big crowd gathered to watch the fun, and Cheller kept the dancers moving. One in the crowd tried to stop the performance by getting the dancer's gun. The made him angry and he fired in the crow
